Headline:

Sharp frost overnight. Rain, sleet and snow arriving through Wednesday.

This Evening and Tonight:

Cold and crisp, with a widespread sharp frost. Mainly dry overnight with light winds throughout, although becoming cloudier in the far west towards dawn, with a mix of rain, sleet and snow perhaps greeting daybreak here. Minimum temperature -5 deg C (23 deg F).

Wednesday:

Starting fine in eastern areas, but becoming cloudier from the west through the morning, with rain and perhaps sleet spreading eastwards, with some snow possible over the Derbyshire hills. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:

Wintry conditions ending Wednesday gradually easing through Thursday, leaving Friday drier but cold, with a risk of freezing fog forming in light winds. Further rain and snow possible into Saturday.
